ROOSEVELT IS DEAD

H[illegible] ssed Away Quietly at His Home.

[illegible] country was shocked [illegible] sadd[illegible] last Monday morn- [illegible] when the news flashed abroad [illegible] the wires that Ex-President Theodore Roosevelt was dead.

His was a wonderful career. As a soldier he was brave and chivalrous. As a scholar and writer he was nard to surpass. As a politician he was a vigorous fighter. As president of this great country he was fearless, progressive and broad-minded, giving the weight of his influence to justice and using the "big stick" on capital without fear or favor.

In later years he disrnpted the great republican party and threw them out of power because they refused to yield to his policies. Since the wane of his Progressive party, he seems to have soured in his disposition and since the war and before he has lost many friends by his com istent abuse of everything done and said in the furtherance of that conflict.

But he is dead! A great American has passed. Let us forget his foibles and remember only that he was a man with a big warm heart who loved his country and his fellow-man.

WYATT BACK AT WORK

The editor of the Clanton Press extends congratulations to editor M. W. Wyatt, editor and cwner of the Union-Banner, on his return home and his immediate and active commencement of operations. Mr. Mack Wyatt deserves the credit of having answered the call of his country, and equally is his young wife deserving of mention owing to the fact that she went with her husband and located near Mr. Wyatt.

Away back yonder, in May, 1902 a small and very unpretentious Hardware business was opened up in the old Banner building by Messrs. Speigneo & Jones.

FROM THE STARVING BODIES OF MEN AND WOMEN IN BIBLE LANDS

THE APPEAL IS URGENT

The People in Countries Devastated by the Unspeakable Turk Are "Dying Like Flies," But We Are Coming to Their Relief

Birmingham, Ala., January 6.—A cry for immediate and urgent help comes to the people of Alabama for the starving in the Bible Lands, through the American Committee for Relief in the Near East, and the committee is confident that Alabama will more than oversubscribe its quota of $300,000 towards the fund of $30,000,000 to be raised in the United States.

Some interesting facts regarding the real condition of these millions of Armenians, Syrians, Greeks, Persians and hundred people, the survivors of atrocities committed by the unspeakable Turks, have just been received by friends in Birmingham from Major Stephen Trowbridge, who investigated the needs of these people at the request of various organizations in the United States.

Some Startling Pictures

"Passing near the Damascus gate," he says in one letter, "I saw many scenes which I shall never be able to blot out from my memory. I remember especially one group of peasant girls one sunny day scratching in the dust beneath the food bags of the army mules near an ammunition dump. In the handfuls of dust they gathered up and hastily picked over there were kernels of oats and barley, which they eagerly threw into their mouths.

"Thin, trembling children found their way to the soup kitchen in the Moslem quarter, and stood for hours near the gates of the city in the hope of receiving a bit of bread. Some of the most pitiful cases were the aged Sudanese slave women from the well-to-do Turkish families had left behind the night of evacuation.

... of grading peanuts will ... changes in the method ... peanuts for the market. Peanuts are brought to the market in the hulls or in the form of hogs. If peanuts are to be sold to the market in the hulls the selection of seed for the next season is of the utmost importance.

The variety to grow is the first question to decide. The small white Spanish seems to be the most desirable both for the oil mills and for candy manufacturers. The small white Spanish is most desirable for the following reasons: It is uniform in size and color; it matures well and fills the hull with pretty sound nuts; it carries a higher percentage of meats than any other variety; it matures early and is adapted to a wide variety of soil types; it is easier to handle during harvest and cures with less difficulty than the running varieties. No mistake is made in choosing the small white Spanish peanut variety to plant for the market.

The next important step in selecting the seed for planting is to free them entirely of any admixture of other varieties. This process, of course, means a great deal of extra time, labor and trouble. Where, however, the stock of peanut seed is once freed of admixtures, it is not necessary for the process to be repeated, if a little care is exercised in the future handling. It seems that the most efficient plan for obtaining an unmixed stock of planting seed is to shell the peanuts by hand a short while before planting. During the process of hand shelling the seed of the other varieties and the unsound nuts can be thrown out. This process also insures a good stand, and economizes in the use of seed. In order to avoid mixtures arising in the field, small white Spanish peanuts should not be planted on land where running peanuts, and, if convenient, other varieties of bunch peanuts, grew the previous year.

After the unmixed stock of seed has been secured there is a good opportunity for field selection during the harvesting and stacking of the plants. The stock of peanuts can be improved every year by selecting at harvest time those plants which are free of diseases and which bear the largest amount of nuts of the type desired. These selected plants can be stacked ... and packed separately for next season's planting.

"MAIL ORDER" HABIT BAD

... violets begin to peep ... the heart of humanity warms and thrills to the approach of Springtime again, we notice that the "Mail Order" man is on his job and the mails are beginning to be flooded with big and little "catalogs," filled with flamboyant pictures of wonderful bargains, (?) and teeming with a mass of seductive literature calculated to narcotize the judgement and distort the truth for the misleading of the prospective purchaser.

In view of this condition, the Press man asks you to consider, honestly and fairly, and in your own interest, a few facts in rebuttal of the specious arguments set forth by the "mail order man."

In the first place, your own good common sense tells you that in this day of market publicity, every needful article you buy, from a spool of thread to a silk dress, and from a tiny pair of baby sandals to the most expensive shoes worn by the fashionable belle on broadway, is standardized in cost and the legitimate price varies but little no matter where you buy. The day of business organization is with us, and no man, nor combination of men, can secure these alledged wonderful price-saving concessions over and above all other legitimate dealers. The consequence is, that when anyone offers you any so-called dependable article of merchandise at "half price," the proposition is a fake on the face of it, and if you fall for the bait, you willfully make yourself a sucker.

...you know there was not a vacant house in Clanton? Not a single one that can be rented for love or money. We have inquiries almost daily from people who want homes here. What are we going to do about it?

It is certainly a great hardship for the city to lose so many good citizens because we can't house them.

The Government Labor Bureau is becoming a little peevish because people all over the country don't start the building boom to give homes to the homeless and labor to the increasing hords of idle men dismissed from war service.

There is plenty of money here and plenty of enterprise to cope with this lamentable condition, but, as usual, there are two sides to the question.

Labor is high, and must stay so unless living expenses come down. All building material found such high altitudes during the heavy demands of the government for everything of the kind in sight and it seems impossible for a ... turn to normal condi... prices unless every... else comes down in proportion.

Why Swift & Company Handle Poultry, Eggs, Butter and Cheese

[illegible] Company went into the produce business because they saw a [illegible] need for the kind of service they were equipped to perform.

The produce business was in chaos. Collecting, transportation, preparation and distribution was hit or miss, with delay, deterioration and loss on every hand.

The farmer was at the mercy of an uncertain, localized market. He had [illegible] way of reaching through to the people who needed what he was [illegible] for them. There was no premium upon improving his stock, for grading was lax or lacking.

The consumer had to accept produce that, as a rule, had no known responsible name behind it. He had no way of knowing how long the eggs or the butter he was buying had been lying around in miscellaneous lots in the back room of a country store. Much of the poultry was not properly refrigerated before shipment or [illegible] protected by refrigeration in transit.

Swift & Company's initiative brought system to this chaos. Their organization, equipment, and experience in handling perishable food products were already adjusted to [illegible].
